NEW GOODS FALL AND WINTER 1908-'09

I HAVE just returned after several weeks spent in the northern markets. During my stay there I had the pleasure of buying the prettiest and most complete stock of Fall and Winter Dry Goods, Notions, Clothing, Ready Made Clothing for Men, Boys and Ladies, Etc., Etc., that it has ever been our pleasure to put on the Arcadia Market.

IT HAS always been our aim to carry a little bit the nicest line and the highest grade stock of any store in our City and we believe we have succeeded. This year I am able to assure our customers that we have bought more in accordance with our ideals than ever before. And we have bought more largely too.

WE ARE too busy this week opening the new goods which are arriving daily to give particulars, but assure all that the prices are quite as attractive as are the goods. No matter what your needs may be in goods for Fall and Winter wear, we are able to satisfy and only ask that you call and see our offerings before you buy.

OUR New Stock will all be marked up, on the shelves and ready for your inspection within a few days. Here this week visit with pleasure in showing anything you may wish to see at any time.

Respectfully,
A. J. DOZIER, Manager

Champion Business Bringers Bring Business

The Best Machines.

The idea that peace could be the normal relation of the nations never entered Napoleon's head or the head of any man about him, declares A. L. Kiehl in "Napoleon's Men and Methods." In his mind peace could only mean a pause between two wars. He had no idea to give to the world. His thoughts did not go beyond his own life. He shrinks at once in comparison with a man of science, who expends his life to create a thought that will nourish and elevate posterity.

If Napoleon reached the highest summit of a prince and a commander, he was also the last who succeeded in gathering about his person all the glamour that had been wont to accompany and adorn the bloody business of war. There was no more of it after his fall. War became afterward an academic study. Military affairs came to resemble industrial interests, in which it is the best machines that gain the victory.

We have seen our armies of the old world and the new. The statue of the man who stood on the bridge in his gala uniform, with his decorations and sash, now sits in a steel box and presses buttons like a telephone girl. When the glamour goes from a thing it is near its end.

The Greatest General.

All things duly considered, the greatest general of whom we have any knowledge was in all probability the Carthaginian, Hannibal. All the information we have of Hannibal comes from his enemies, and yet what achievements they were forced to credit him with! The second Punic war—the most brilliant in history—was practically one man against a whole nation, and that the strongest then known. With the army that he had molded out of raw and barbarous levies Hannibal had to fight a nation of the stoutest and best trained warriors of ancient times, and he had to do this without any assistance from home. It has been well said that there is nowhere else an example of what a single man of genius may achieve against the most tremendous odds.—New York American.

It is not so long ago that the virtue of wearing the wearer food fortune arose in the state where the stone is so valuable. A particular fine piece of jade is the state to take possession of the land where it was found. The best specimens represent all the hues and effects of sea foam, but these are eagerly snapped up by collectors and seldom come into the public market. There is another cause for the popularity of jade. Its peculiar green tinge has the effect of making the human skin look very white. In this connection the quality of the stone is of no account so long as the color is there. Indeed, many of the less expensive jade ornaments are made from chips of the stone which contain noticeable flaws.—Pearson's.

The Actress' Retort.

Georgette Leblanc, the actress, wife of Maurice Maeterlinck, was on tour in a French town, where the local company "supported" her in one of her husband's plays.

But the support was weak and halting. The poet's lines were mangled, and several characters seemed unable to understand what they were saying. Mme. Leblanc sought out her manager and spoke to him.

"A writer like Maeterlinck should be treated with more respect."

"Madame," he answered, "M. Maeterlinck is not the first to suffer. Sophocles, Moliere, Racine, Shakespeare, Goethe and other great dramatists are daily murdered in the same way."

"Possibly, but they are not murdered alive, at any rate."

The Unappreciative Londoner.

London is a marvel. But we Londoners do not wax passionate over its qualities as the enthusiastic Frenchman does over his Paris. There is more beauty, more charm, more wealth, more culture and more art to be found in London than anywhere in the world, and we stolid English people do not really appreciate it.—London Graphic.

Lady (inspecting old house)—I understand they say this house is haunted? Caretaker—Haunts? I make naught o' them haunts. Them what's gone to t'right place don't want to come back again, and them what's gone to t'other place, they won't let 'em.—London Mail.

"Can You Tell the Whole Truth?" is a new article by Prof. Hugo Muensterberg. Why, Professor, this is a campaign year.

A Magazine writer says that American cities have no distinctive smell of their own. Tarry a bit in Pittsburgh, stranger; spend an hour in Chicago; sniff the malted breeze of Milwaukee;
